ENGLISH IN DEBATE Chamberlain Proposes to Make Italian Pact Effective Now

P R A G U E, Czechoslovakia. —(AP)—Czechoslovakia's frontier dispute with Poland ended Tuesday with an exchange of notes between Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Janakovic and Polish Foreign Minister Ciesinski. The notes said the two governments were in agreement on their common border, only a slight rectification being necessary before the formal treaty would be signed.

Anglo-Italian Pact LONDON Eng.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain announced Tuesday in the House of Commons that he intended to bring the Anglo-Italian accord of April 16 into force as "soon as possible."

He said he would offer a motion for debate Wednesday to the effect that, "This house welcome the intention of his majesty's government to bring the Anglo-Italian agreement into force."

The prime minister spoke to the house as it assembled for a four-day session expected to be devoted largely to debate on the government's rearmament, civilian defense, and foreign policies.

The Anglo-Italian pact, signed at Rome the day before Easter, held in abeyance because of the failure to achieve a "settlement" in connection with the Spanish civil war.

F.D. Backs Pension Plan in California

Endorses Downey in Preference to "Dyed-in-Wool Reactionary"

By the Associated Press

The New Deal became more than ever the dominant election issue Monday when President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace took a hand in the California and New York campaigns and Alfred M. Landon declared continuation of great federal power would lead to fascism.

Sherman Downey, who won the Democratic senatorial nomination in California with support from the 300,000-Thursdays pension movement, was endorsed by the president as "a real liberal in mind and in heart."

Downey headquarters in Los Angeles made public a letter from the president to Representative Jerry Voorhis, expressing this opinion of the candidate and adding:

"It would be a calamity for California to be represented in the senate by a dyed-in-the-wool reactionary."

Downey's Republican opponent is Philip Bowers, a farmer-lawyer.

In Washington, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace issued a statement, accusing (Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate opposing Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's re-election campaign in New York, of failing to "tell the whole truth" about the income of New York state farmers. He said Dewey had "covered up part of the story" in replying to Lehman's recent statement that the state's farm income had increased 63 per cent in the past six years.

The secretary's statement was read with special interest by many persons because a victory for Dewey in the gubernatorial race would carry him toward the Republican presidential nomination in 1940.

The program was opened with the explanation of the Plan Service Book, by Melva Bullington, home demonstration agent. This was followed by an explanation of how to read blueprints by Fred Venrick of the Portland Cement association. Mr. Venrick also gave a demonstration on stone foundation and stone walls. The demonstration included the mixing of mortar.

Frederick J. Shulley, Extension Forester, gave a demonstration on the building of log homes, chinking, seasoning, selection of poles and proper methods of cutting wood lots. Mr. Shulley explained how the farm wood lot could be made to pay off a profit annually. The problem of roofs, paintings, insulation and ventilation was discussed by Fred Venrick. The group agreed that cypress shingles were probably the most durable of all shingles that we had available and that wood is the cheapest insulation available and quite satisfactory. Mr. Venrick also discussed electricity, water supply and sewage disposal. A miniature sewage system was on display.

Frank J. Hill, Hempstead county director of the Southwest Arkansas Electric Cooperative corporation, gave a report on the progress that Hempstead county had made on rural electrification.

County Judge H. F. Rider, discussed possibilities of the plan service and expressed his regrets that this had not been available 25 years earlier.

Miss Bullington discussed Floor Plans, Interior Room Arrangements and Storage. She stressed four fundamentals of home building which are as follows: 1. For preparation, storage and serving of food. 2. For reception, and entertainment of guests, recreation and living. 3. For privacy of quarters for sleep and rest. 4. For provision for storage, service and utilities. For finishes and storage arrangements she referred the group to extension circular No. 252 on Floors, Their Finish and Care and extension circular No. 379, Cabinets for storage equipment for the farm home, including kitchen cabinets, cabinet plans, and storage space for medicine, linens, canned products and clothes and books. These bulletins are available in the extension office.

County Agricultural Agent, Oliver L. Adams, summarized the meeting and discussed Farmstead Arrangement and Landscaping.

Prospective builders in the group included: Mrs. Eric Turner of Palmox, who has secured blueprint No. 76246 for her new home. She plans to use native pine on a stone foundation.

F. L. Padgett, Sr., stated that he planned to build a log cabin to be used for family recreation center. C. A. Hamilton of McCaskill, who is a carpenter attended the meeting to get new information on construction problems.

Robert Woolsey, Film Player, Dies

Partner of Bert Wheeler Succumbs to Kidney Ailment at 49

MALIBU BEACH, Calif.—(AP)—Robert Woolsey, 49, motion picture comedian, died Monday at his home here after a long illness. At his bedside were his wife, the former Mignone Reed, and her mother, Mrs. Mary Reed.

Woolsey was born in Oakland, Calif. Wheeler in many comedies, had been suffering from a kidney ailment for the past 18 months. He finished one picture after being stricken, but then was forced to retire.

Woolsey was born in Oakland, Calif. August 14, 1889, but was reared and educated in Murphysboro, Ill. After appearing in vaudeville and stock shows, Woolsey teamed with Wheeler and the two enjoyed a long association except for a split up in 1932. An argument the nature of which neither revealed publicly, led to their break, but after a few months they made up and appeared in several more films.

Charley Chapman Chased by Posse But Escapes

Officer Thinks He Is Dead; Evidence Points to Escape

Chapman's Pal Captured in Gunfire in Mississippi Woods

HOUNDS LOSE TRAIL

Follow Chapman Out of Woods to Road, Lose the Trail There

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—(AP)—Major Murphy Roden of the Louisiana State Police said Tuesday he believed Charley Chapman, notorious desperado, who exchanged gunfire with officers near here Monday night and escaped, would be found dead in the woods.

Major Roden said Chapman's companion, who is believed to be Dave Graves, Midwestern bank bandit, was captured and is being held in an unnamed jail.

The sheriff's office said it was feared Chapman had escaped unhurt in an automobile.

Chapman was surrounded Monday night by a squad of highway patrolmen four miles north of Philadelphia. He eluded officers, who fired on him as he ran behind a barn, and then darted into an adjoining woods. Chapman in his flight fired four bullets, none of which was effective.

A deputy sheriff reported Tuesday that bloodhounds trailed Chapman on a circular course through the woods during the night, and back to a gravel highway that leads from Philadelphia to Chicago.

"The dogs followed the trail about a mile down the highway," the officer said, "where it abruptly ended."

It was believed Chapman was either picked up by an automobile at this point or forced a passing motorist to stop—although no report had been received early Tuesday of any highway holdup.

$200,000 Museum Honoring Will Rogers to Be Dedicated at Claremore on Nov. 4

Famous Names of Nation to Gather There for Homage

Rogers Family Contributes Relics, Installed in New Building

50,000 TO ATTEND

Heading Guests Will Be Eddie Cantor, Fred Stone, George Cohen

By NEA Service

CLAREMORE, Okla.—If, in some celestial highway, Will Rogers is still getting all his knowledge of earthly goings-on from the papers, he will learn from this that the folks back in Claremore are going to do something big for him November 4.

Yes, sir, they're going to dedicate a $200,000 memorial museum to Will on that day—which would have been his 59th birthday if Wiley Post's plane hadn't plunged to earth three years ago.

They've built the memorial of native Rogers county limestone on a ridge that Will always allowed he'd like to build a house on himself, some day, but he never got around to it.

There will be plenty of celebrities present of the kind Will liked to hobnob around with when he was reading the papers and commenting on what they said. It will be the kind of a ceremony where you'd always have been likely to find Will himself, a few years ago, and then you'd have read all about it in the next morning's paper with a kindly crack from Will.

There'll be speeches by Governor Marland and Jesse Jones, Howard Hughes, Douglas Corrigan, Eddie Cantor, Eddie Cantor, Fred Stone, and George Cohen will be there, and maybe 50,000 other people. And of course Mrs. Rogers and the three Rogers children.

Will's Relatives to Be On Hand

But it wouldn't be right to have only the famous and great taking over a memorial for Will Rogers, and so the Become College Glee Club will sing, and the Oklahoma Military Academy and A. and M. College bands will play, too.

And Will's own relatives, the Herbert McSpaddens, who are running Will's old ranch down near Oologah, will be up for the ceremony. Mrs. McSpadden is little dubious about the great pile of limestone. "It would have been too gaudy for Will," she said.

Built like a ranch house, it has four exhibition halls, and looks out over the rich, lush grazing land that attracted Clem Rogers, Will's father, and that Will himself loved so well. Already the Indian and pioneer relics from Will's old ranch and from his later home in Santa Monica, Calif., have been sent on by his family to be installed in the museum.

Big Rodeo and Pageant

There'll be a big rodeo and pageant of the Old West that Will would have liked if he could see it, because he used to be a rodeo rider himself. Old-timers like Pawnee Bill and Col. Zack Miller are arranging it, and more than a thousand will take part.

Episodes of early Oklahoma history beginning with the Battle of Claremore Mound between the Osages and the Cherokees in 1818 will be given, the night performance under lights resounding to the plunking of horses' hooves, the squeal of wagon wheels and the crack of the blacksnake whip. No one need be surprised, though, if during the thick of the pageantry and hullabaloo, a dry but unearthy voice should be heard saying: "Shucks! I was just an old cowhand who had a little luck. Why all this fuss about me?"

State Bank and Trust Firm Resources Gain

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Banking Commissioner Grover S. Jernigan reported Tuesday that Arkansas state banks and trust companies had total resources of $79,016,237.73 at the close of business June 30, compared with $76,432,927.57 on the same date in 1937.

Thirteen per cent of Iceland's area is covered by snowfields and glaciers.

Perched proudly on the knoll where Will Rogers always wanted to build a home, but somehow never did, this solid building of native limestone is being dedicated as a permanent memorial to the man who laughed a thousand quips, and never an unkind one.

One in a thousand—this picture of the late Will Rogers, now being honored by a memorial in his home town of Claremore, Okla., was selected as his favorite picture by Will's son from the family collection of more than 1000 "favorite pictures" of their famous father.

Study Hour Law's Newspaper Effect

Raise Question of Reporters on Long-Drawn-Out Assignment

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Elmer F. Andrews, wage and hour administrator, told newspaper executives Tuesday he was giving careful study to their contention that the new maximum hour requirements would curtail newspaper service to the public.

Daily papers definitely come under the acts provisions, he said in a letter to Elisha Hanson, attorney for the American Newspaper Publishers association; and then added:

"The problem of overtime compensation you mentioned, including the employment of reporters on 'continuing assignment' is being carefully studied."

He Tells Customers They're Always Wrong

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—"The Customer Is Always Wrong."

A sign with such a legend greeted the customers in Albert Picard's business section.

It is not offensive to his patrons, however, since they are mostly store executives and clerks who often have told him the same thing.

Picard said he receives complaints with the prologue: "You're wrong. You're just as wrong as you can be. But go ahead, I'll listen to you. What is it?"

Amendment 28 Is Rapped by Vesey

Speaks Before Kiwanis Club; New Officers Are Elected

The Hope Kiwanis club Tuesday elected new officers and heard an attack on proposed state amendment No. 28 by Representative John P. Vesey.

In speaking out at the proposal, Mr. Vesey outlined what he said were three good reasons why the amendment should be defeated. They are as follows:

1. The adoption of the amendment would make it constitutionally impossible to ever reduce the gasoline tax.
2. The amendment would make it impossible to reduce automobile and truck license fees.
3. The amendment would give the state authority to assume the bonded indebtedness of various real estate promotions which amounts to a large sum in the city of Little Rock.

"Under this amendment our tax revenue would be turned over daily to out-of-state banking institutions."

"The proposal even would give citizens the right to sue the state. No state in the union has ever adopted such a dangerous measure," Mr. Vesey declared.

The speaker was presented on a program arranged by Regional Board No. 2.

New Officers

The Kiwanis club held its annual election of new officers. G. T. Cross being elected as president to succeed A. W. Stubbeman.

J. Ched Hall was elected vice-president and Bert Webb was nominated secretary-treasurer. The new directors are:

W. Clark Bruner, Byron Evans, Joe R. Floyd, R. V. Herndon, Sr., Ole Lewis, Cliff Stewart, C. Paul Tolleson.

Rail Management and Labor Agree

Will Make Peaceful Approach to Solving Problems of Rails

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Railroad management and labor agreed Tuesday to make a peaceful approach to solving problems of rails.

Both sides said the president expressed confidence that a helpful legislative program for the carriers would be presented by an informal committee of six for consideration by congress. Mr. Roosevelt appointed the committee—three representatives of management and three of labor—some months ago.

Harrison, one of the three labor members of the informal committee of six, said his group was in session and "ready to move forward." He believed that "in a good many respects we can get together."

Cotton Plan Vote Scheduled Dec. 10

Community Meetings to Be Held in All Sections of County

By OLIVER L. ADAMS, County Agricultural Agent, Hempstead County

All producers in Hempstead county will have an opportunity to become fully informed on the issues involved in the cotton marketing quota referendum which is to be held on December 10, Oliver L. Adams, county agent, announced Tuesday.

The question to be decided in the referendum is whether or not marketing quotas will be in effect in 1939, or, in other words, whether or not there will be any definite production control measures in connection with the 1939 agricultural conservation program, the county agent said.

Plans are being made for community meetings in all sections of the county, Mr. Adams said. Dates and places of these meetings will be announced later. He urges all producers to attend the meetings and to study the situation.

"All producers in the county should attend the meeting in their community, and should study the situation thoroughly so they will be able to cast their vote on December 10 in full knowledge of the facts," Mr. Adams said.

It is expected that the proposed marketing quotas for each farm will be available before the referendum is held, so that each producer will know in advance what can be expected on his own farm.

H. Earl King, Riley L. Lowallen and J. Mark Jackson, who are members of the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program County Committee; B. E. McMahon, county administrative assistant in agricultural conservation; H. H. Huskey, president of the Hempstead County Farm Bureau, Kenneth S. Bates, assistant county agent; and Oliver L. Adams, county agent, are attending a school of instruction, for southwest Arkansas relative to marketing quotas and 1939 agricultural conservation program, at Malvern Tuesday.

Little Fish to Get A Big Ride in 'Chutes

BILLINGS, Mont.—(AP)—As an experiment a few baby trout soon are to take a parachute ride from an airplane into a lake to determine whether they can survive.

If successful, the parachute jumps will become a routine method of getting the small fish from hatcheries into lakes that are difficult to reach by horse trail.

The small fish will be dropped in parachute vessels that will hold the fish and a small quantity of water. When the vessels strike the water the yare expected to capsize and the fish will be liberated in the lake.

Only one alderman is to be nominated in each of the four wards.

Nazi Army Chief Disagrees, Resigns

Gen. Beck Opposed Czech Crisis, Fearing Germany Unprepared

BERLIN.—(AP)—Ludwig Beck, chief of the army general staff, resigned Monday and retired to private life because he could not see eye-to-eye with Adolf Hitler. A brief announcement said Hitler had accepted the resignation of General Beck along with that of Col. Gen. Gerd von Rundstedt, commander of Army Group No. 1.

Although the announcement said both commanders were relieved at their "own desire," it was believed they were taking the consequences for not being in step with Nazi policies.

General Beck, first chief of the army general staff in the nation's rejuvenated army forces, was said to have become increasingly in conflict with Hitler during the efforts of Britain's Lord Runciman to mediate the Czechoslovak-Sudetenland dispute. When it became clear that Hitler was determined to risk war to "liberate" Sudetenland, General Beck felt he could not take responsibility of mapping military plans for a Germany he considered inadequately prepared to meet a combined allied force.

About that time General Beck was sent on a "special mission" to the Western front—across the county from Czechoslovakia—to inspect Germany's Siegfried line on the Rhine facing France's Maginot line. He continued to hold the title of chief of the General Staff, but Hitler was in active charge.

Because of the crisis at that time, Hitler was said to have felt it unwise to have any army shake-up.

General Beck, as a disciplined soldier, realized he had underestimated German will to conquest and had overestimated the will of Britain and France to prevent further spread of German influence. He chose retirement as did Rundstedt, apparently for much the same reason.

The army, however, is strong for both men. They were both given a boost in rank, on retirement, to colonel-generalships, which is next to a field marshal's rank. General Beck in addition was granted permission to wear the uniform of the Fifth Artillery regiment. Hitler wrote both retiring generals letters thanking them fervently for their past services.

Here Is an Opportunity For Straight Thinking

The world is governed more and more by emotion, and less and less by thought. That is the greatest danger of our day.

If any sanity and decency is to be kept in the world, people must think more. That means all people, not just the leaders.

That is harder than just to shout "Ho-ho-ry!" or "Boo!" But it must be done.

Let's take a laboratory example, the latest Lindbergh affair. Chances are that one either considers Lindbergh a nutty Fascist spy who intrigued against the Soviet Union, or a wise observer who served peace and the world by telling the truth about the Russian air force, in quarters where that knowledge was badly needed.

Yet how far is one justified in drawing either conclusion? Let's re-survey the facts, and see whether opinion is conditioned by feelings toward Russia, the Soviets, Hitler, Chamberlain, or by known facts.

Lindbergh went to Russia. He was entertained by Russian airmen with the usual courtesies, and shown as much of Russian air strength as the Russians cared to show.

He returned to England. Several magazines there printed a rumor that Lindbergh had made certain comments complimentary to the Russian air force at a social event and to persons of influence in the British government.

His Russian non-aviators immediately came out with a violent statement condemning Lindbergh as a paid liar and a Fascist spy. The world promptly took sides. Lindbergh himself remained silent.

Beyond the published rumor, how much actual proof has been shown that Lindbergh said the things attributed to him? Very little. The central fact of the whole affair remains unverified.

Assuming, however, that Lindbergh said the things attributed to him, were they true? Obviously the effectiveness of any air force before actual test in war is a matter of opinion. It is not a matter on which to use terms like "liar." There can be no proof.

Now the third accusation: That Lindbergh was a paid spy for Fascism, and made such a report on Russian aviation purely to influence Britain against opposing Hitler. That is a nasty accusation. It ought not to have been made without the strongest evidence. But is there any evidence? None at all. It is a plausible-sounding hypothesis, but of proof there is not an iota.

Three beliefs have been quickly leaped by many people in this affair. They conclude: 1. Lindbergh said or did not say what he was reported to have said. 2. It was or was not true. 3. It was or was not said with the worst kind of ulterior motive. Yet all three conclusions rest on assumptions not proved.

All these things were reported in some detail by the newspapers, and properly so, because they were news. But if ever there was a case for suspended judgment on the part of the reader, this is it. The whole thing is a question of fact, and the fact is by no means established.

This is the kind of testing and searching which Americans must apply to all news, especially foreign news, these days if we are to choose a course that is wise and just, and not merely be blown on winds of passion and demagoguery.

Common Skin Diseases in Children May Become Extremely Serious

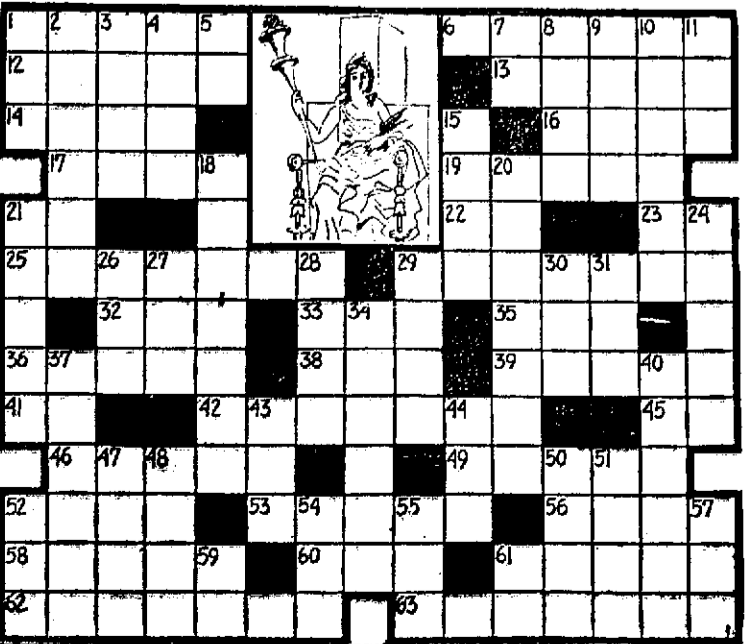

Besides the eruptions on the skin associated with such infectious diseases as scarlet fever, measles, chicken pox and sensitivities of foods, children suffer with infections of the skin that are particularly annoying. The most common conditions are impetigo, scabies, ringworm, and the spots caused by various parasites.

In impetigo little blisters filled with pus appear mainly on the hands and face. These vary in size from tiny lesions about the size of the head of a pin to large yellowish looking bumps.

For Alderman, Ward Four
SYD MCMATH

Eventually several of these bumps may run together, become covered with scabs and crusts, and produce a most unsightly appearance.

The condition can be spread from one child to another by direct contact or by the use of a common wash cloth or towel, or by contaminated fingers. For this reason a child with impetigo should be kept away from other children until the condition has been brought under control. Doctors know that strict cleanliness is necessary to bring the condition under control. After the tissues are thoroughly cleaned with soap and warm water and the infectious material removed to some extent he will prescribe an ointment suited to the skin of the child concerned and capable of destroying the infectious organisms.

When this condition gets out of control in the wards of a hospital, in an orphan asylum, or anywhere else, it should be considered most serious, and efforts should be persistent until new cases fail to appear.

Several times this column has told about scabies, also called the itch, Cuban its, seven-year itch, and by other names. An old market woman in Italy discovered that sulphur will control it. The condition is brought about by a little parasite that burrows under the skin wherever it is moist and thin, particularly between the fingers. Incidentally it is the female itch mite that causes the trouble. Her activities in fulfilling her destiny to produce more itch mites under the skin are the cause of the itching. This condition spreads easily from one person to another.

Once it got loose on the skins and in the costumes of an entire opera company and the effect on a production of Aida changed that great operatic tragedy into a comedy.

In clearing up an outbreak of scabies it may be necessary to boil every bit of clothing or textiles with which the infected person has been in contact and to destroy other materials. Persistent treatment with the sulphur lotions and ointments that he doctor prescribes will clear up most cases.

Ring worm, particularly the form known as athlete's foot, is now so common that practically everybody knows something about it. But it should not be regarded lightly because a persistent case of ringworm can actually incapacitate a man from work, and once loose in a school or gymnasium may attack nearly every child that comes in contact with it. The treatment may involve not only all sorts of anti-septics, but also the use of ultraviolet rays, X-rays and still other special forms of medical activity.

Miss Dorothy Gunter, a junior in Texas State College for Women at Denton last week was honored with a bid for membership in the Athenaeum club; the policy of the club is to promote interest in current literature and in the achievement of Scholastic standards.

Among the many Halloween parties among the young people, the juvenile party at the Ogden Studio on South Main street was a most colorful and delightful affair. The young guests came in costume, and some of the older ones came likewise, just to make things interesting for the young ones, and indeed, "a good time was had by all." Appropriate refreshments were served at the close of the evening. Young John Paul Saunders entertained 24 of his boy friends at his home on South Hervey street. All came in costume, Halloween games and refreshments were enjoyed. A crowd met at the home of Miss Peggy McNeill, costumed and enjoyed a stroll through the neighborhood and a ride on the down town streets, another crowd enjoyed a hay ride to the country home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Cook. Callers and knockers at the doors were numerous, furnishing a bright hour for those of us who like to recall the things we did in days gone past.

Mrs. R. M. LaGrone has returned from a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Surrey Gilliam in El Dorado.

Friends will be interested in knowing that Miss Elizabeth White, who has been doing government work for the past two years in Little Rock, has been selected among others for a course in Welfare work at Tulane University in New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Williams and family spent the week-end at their cottage on Lake Hamilton, Hot Springs.

We, the Women

By RUTH MILLETT

Wives Now Play Husbands' New Loves For Old Game

When a woman who has helped a man to success finds herself deserted in middle-age for a younger woman, no one is very much surprised. It's an old, old story.

But enacted the other way around, it's still a little startling. The latest example is the story of Ruth Etting, who, pushed to success by her husband of seventeen years, divorced him when she reached the top and got herself a young husband.

The discarded husband couldn't take it. But men may have to learn to. Every wife, no matter how secure her present is, knows that there is the ugly possibility that her husband may up and leave her some time for a younger, newer romance. Women have had that pounded into them for generations. Everything they read warns them of the danger. They spend weary hours in beauty salons, week after week, year after year, trying to avert it.

Every magazine they pick up has at least one story of a middle-aged woman trying by hook and crook to hang on to a fortysix, restless husband. And in every woman's circle of acquaintances there is at least one wife who was put aside after years of marriage. Women know there is no real security for them. Not as long as there are younger, prettier women in the world.

But men have never worried about the danger of losing a middle-aged wife to another man. They haven't had to.

Maybe now is the time for them to start. For now that women are becoming persons in their own right, and are hanging on to youth almost as long as men, they are finding that they, too, can indulge in the foolish luxury of putting aside an old mate for a younger one.

It isn't a pretty business, which-ever way it works. But at least men can't deny it was their own idea.

Cowboy Band for Livestock Show

Hardin-Simmons University to Send Band to Little Rock

ABILENE, Texas.—The famous Hardin-Simmons University Cowboy band, from Abilene, representing the traditions and spirit of the Southwest in its regalia and music, is coming to Little Rock to play for the annual Arkansas Live Stock Show there, November 4 to 11, it was announced here today.

Director Marion B. McClure, "little maestro" who is a composer-conductor, will head the colorful musical group, G. B. Sander, its manager, announced after accepting the invitation to play at the Little Rock show, received from C. A. Tyler, secretary.

The Cowboy Band, now in its sixteenth year, is widely traveled, covering 300,000 miles since record keeping on its travels began in 1922. During these years it has twice toured Europe, has played for royalty, and has been in demand for conventions, a presidential inauguration, concerts and exhibitions.

Governor Carl E. Bailey, a recent Abilene visitor, here when the Cowboy Band welcomed the "Arkansas Traveler" special train, bearing the University of Arkansas Razorbacks to their game with Santa Clara, recalled the band's visit to the Confederate Reunion in Hot Springs, a decade ago. The band has been the official band of the Confederacy for many years.

It was the official band for the Pan-American Exposition at Dallas, in 1936 and 1937. It has been featured at Madison Square Garden, New York's Ziegfeld Theater, and the London Palladium.

Will Rogers was one of its admirers, and was the band's first honorary member, giving its director $100 with the instruction to "go and buy yourselves some new tunes." The band played several times with Will Rogers on his flood relief tour in the Southwest, and on other engagements, and to honor him as a friend, the band ended an engagement in the Republic of Mexico to play at the dedication of the Will Rogers Memorial Shrine, atop Cheyenne Mountain, at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The Cowboy Band is scheduled to leave Abilene in its own busses in order to be in Little Rock for the scheduled opening of the show.

Electric Service The varied and often profitable uses to which thousands of farm people are putting their newly acquired electric service will be discussed by Elbert Karns, a representative of the Rural Electrification Administration, in a radio talk from Station KLRA at Little Rock, Ark., Tuesday, November 1, 1938, at 12:30 p. m. Mr. Karns is a native of Arkansas and for several years was rural electrification specialist for the State Extension Service at Fayetteville. Until recently he was in REA's utilization staff, arranging and conducting meetings in project areas attended by hundreds of Arkansas people. Recently he has been assigned to the examining division, helping applicants for new loans to get their preliminary work done in proper fashion.

The broadcast will be a part of the series, "The United States Government Reports," presented under the auspices of the National Emergency Council.

Mr. Karns will tell where the State of Arkansas stands in rural electrification and how several hundred groups of farmers in Arkansas and the nation are using REA funds to serve themselves with electricity at cost.

Forest Fires The tell-tale column of smoke rising from burning forest is the result, in most cases of human carelessness.

Official state records show that 50 per cent of all forest fires reported in Arkansas during the last 4 years were caused by incendiarism, 25 per cent by smolder, and 7 per cent by brush burning.

Fire is the greatest single enemy of the forests, according to Frederick J. Shulley, Extension forester, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. On the other hand, public opinion is the greatest single agency in combating fire. Forest fires destroy lumber, injure labor, kill industry, rob the community, and increase taxes, Mr. Shulley said.

Here are a few simple rules, which, if followed, will go far toward reducing the large number of man-caused forest fires, Mr. Shulley said.

1. Matches—Be sure the match is out. Break it in half before you throw it away.

2. Tobacco—Be sure that pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stubs are dead before throwing them away. Tramping them out is a safe way.

3. Brush burning—Never burn brush or slash on a dry day, windy day, or while there is the slightest danger that the fire will get away. When burning brush, always watch the fire—don't let it "get out."

4. Campfires—When building a campfire, scrape away all inflammable material from a spot 5 feet in diameter.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

CHRISTMAS CARDS

Snapshots such as this can be posed any time now—and will make charming, inexpensive Christmas cards.

ABOUT this time each year, I observe a ring of red ink around a date on my calendar, and a note on the margin—"Time to think about Christmas cards." It's a warning that has saved me lots of trouble in the past, and that is why I am passing it along to you now.

Naturally, every dyed-in-the-wool Guild member likes to design his Christmas card around one of his own snapshots. However, many of us tend to put it off until the last moment—and, in the end, have to send out ordinary cards that are not at all individual. So my advice is—get busy now, and have your cards ready for early mailing.

No two photographic Christmas cards are alike. That is what makes them so personal, and there are thousands of ideas you can adapt. The picture is the important part, and a clever picture idea gives the card more appeal.

If your child has a set of building blocks with big letters on them, try lining up the blocks so they spell "Merry Christmas." Then pose the child beside them, holding, perhaps, the last letter ready to place it in position—and you have a set-up for a story-telling picture.

Special pictures such as this lead to charming cards, well worth the little planning they require. However, a good group snapshot of the family at home is often preferred to snapshots. A picture of the house—especially with snow on it—makes an attractive card, and you may have a suitable picture from last winter that can be used.

Run through the album, and see what you can find. Some of the pictures may give you ideas for new snapshots, especially suited to Christmas card use. The chief point is—decide early, for Christmas arrives almost before you know it.

Five Football Players Dismissed at La. Tech

RUSTON, La. —(AP)— Five varsity football players were "permanently dismissed" from Louisiana Tech Monday and 23 other men students and seven women "campused" for rule infractions.

President E. S. Richardson and Coach Eddie McLane said that Joe Eager, junior halfback; John Ladue, junior halfback; Sam Gooch, sophomore end; Miron Eakin, sophomore halfback; and Sammie Dillard, sophomore fullback, were dismissed for breaking training rules.

The other men and women students were "campused" for infractions of regulations during an excursion to the state fair in Shreveport, La., when Tech played Louisiana Normal October 22.

Only one-eight of the original forest area of the United States remains intact.

Lombardi Chosen as Most Valuable

Cincinnati Catcher Gets Top Billing in Associated Press Poll

NEW YORK. —(AP)— Out of as strong a group of candidates as ever aspired to the honor, Ernie Lombardi Monday was voted the National League's most valuable player for 1938 by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Although the Cincinnati Reds' classy catcher met stiff opposition from such other valued workmen as Bill Lee, Arky Vaughan and Mel Ott, the 24 members of the writers' voting committee gave him a sizeable margin with 229 points under a new scoring system. This total compared with a possible "perfect score" of 336, had every member picked him for first place.

Thus Lombardi the league's batting champion and best catcher this year, becomes the first Cincinnati performer ever to win the honor.

He was picked first on 10 of the 24 ballots, a noteworthy vote considering the opposition he faced. The point total for "the Schnozzola" represented edge of 63 over the second-place 166 for Lee, who pitched the Chicago Cubs into the National League pennant with 22 wins and his iron-man job of working four days in a row over the final week.

Hitting king of the league with a .342 average, 200-pound Lombardi was the big reason why the Reds wound up in the first division after finishing in the cellar in '37.

He's an a-1 hitter and far better than a green hand in the mechanics of catching.

Now that Gabby Hartnett is slowing up, there isn't another receiver in the senior circuit who can touch the 30-year old slugger from Oakland, Calif. His day-by-day play shows all the characteristics a player requires for most-valuable consideration: actual value to his team, both on offense and defense; the number of games played; and general character, disposition, loyalty and effort.

The list of candidates with total points for each:

- Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati, 229
- Bill Lee, Chicago, 166
- Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh, 163
- Mel Ott, New York, 132
- Buck McCormick, Cincinnati, 130
- Johnny Rizzo, Pittsburgh, 96
- Stan Hack, Chicago, 87
- Paul Derringer, Cincinnati, 70
- Mace Brown, Pittsburgh, 62
- Gabby Hartnett, Chicago, 61
- Ducky Medwick, St. Louis, 55
- Johnny Mize, St. Louis, 28
- Tony Cuccinello, Boston, 23
- Pep Young, Pittsburgh, 19
- Clay Bryant, Chicago, 16

- Ival Goodman, Cincinnati, 11
- Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati, 6

RAISING A FAMILY

Young Child Must Be Trained to Take Care of the Younger Child—and So, Ad Infinitum

When large families were the style and living less convenient, the older children of the family had to look after the younger ones. That was as much a part of daily living as eating their meals. A writer recently gave her impressions of her early days, as a little girl in a New England village.

Going to bed, one elder child went ahead with the candle, then came mother with the baby, and there followed a rank of small figures, each bearing the night's supplies for baby.

It was typical of the day. Each child was held at least partly responsible for the younger ones in line.

Today we think it a sort of tyranny to wish the care or responsibility of younger children on their older sisters and brothers. It is considered something beautiful if an older child even treats his small sister or brother kindly. Hasn't he his own work to do? Isn't he entitled to his freedom? Who would be so thoughtless as to expect a bigger brother to stay in with little brother and let mother and dad go out? Not long ago I heard a young girl of fourteen insist on her mother going to a show. "I'll stay with Buddy," she offered. "You and Dad go."

"But you want to see it, too," said her mother. "This is the last night. If you can't go I won't enjoy it at all. I guess we'll all stay home."

Jeanette insisted. It had been a long time since I had heard a child put her mother's interest first. My own do, but then they are older.

I don't, of course, believe in the slavery of "little mothers," meaning children of tender age lugging babies around all day, when they should be playing. This, I think, goes without saying. But I do deplore the fact that times have so completely changed that teenagers do very little fathering and mothering.

Perhaps it is not necessary in many homes to rhesuse blithe adolescents to change daddies or wheel prams; but it is the time to instill on their co-operation at least with their little sisters and brothers. A little responsibility in this direction is a maturing influence. Besides, it teaches kindness and consideration. It is one of the responsibilities of the first born to dependents. On the other hand, small children often tease and torment older kin. This is terribly trying to adolescent patience. It should not be permitted. But the little child who knows he is loved, not just tolerated, by Big Brother or Jim or Big Sister Mary, won't carry his pranks very far.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Cotton

Agricultural Exploration—The World ... My Garden An Excellent Tale

It is a truism that the race usually fails to realize who its real benefactors are. Emperors and generals can always command statues; but the men who really make the world a better place to live in, who push hunger back and give the race new weapons in its eternal struggle for survival, are all too apt to go quite unnoticed.

You likely to reflect on this truth when you read "The World Was My Garden," by David Fairchild (Scribner's, $3.75). For this book lifts the curtain on the activities of what Paul de Kruif once called the hunger-fighters—the patient, underpaid, unheralded and greatly gifted scientists who make two blades of grass grow where one grew before, who protect and improve our granaries and our orchards, give us a better diet and knock the lugubrious theories of Malthus into a cocked hat.

They are a new breed. Mr. Fairchild's father was on the faculty of America's first agricultural school—that of Michigan—and three years after the Custer massacre, became the first president of the first agricultural school in Kansas. When the son went to Washington in the 'nineties to work for the Department of Agriculture, the whole department was housed in a ramshackle old dwelling on the edge of Washington.

Mr. Fairchild tells of his work and of the work of his colleagues, and his book is enormously interesting. Because of their work, you have more and better foods on your table today than your grandfather had on his, and the prospects that your children's grandchildren will live in a land of plenty are enormously increased. The country is better served by few men than by its botanists and "agricultural explorers;" this fascinating book tells who some of them are and what their work is like.
